Resilience and Global Skills: How Immigrant Professionals Can Succeed

Conference encourages leveraging life experience and global expertise

Toronto – On February 26th, immigrant professionals are invited to attend the 13th Annual IEP Conference. The conference provides resources and insight for skilled immigrants looking to succeed in the Canadian job market.

Keynote speaker Dr. Kwame McKenzie, CEO of the Wellesley Institute, will speak on how tapping into the resilience that immigrants develop in their journey toward a new life in Canada is a valuable asset not to be ignored.

Internationally Educated Professionals (IEPs) are encouraged to use their resilience, persistence, and global skills to achieve their employment goals in Canada. Leveraging IEPs' skills – such as multiple languages and unique international/cultural perspectives - is a great way to position Canada as an innovative leader on the global economic map.

Conference attendees will have great opportunities to explore resources in various sectors, including Engineering; Finance and Accounting; Healthcare; Sales, Marketing and Communications; and Information Technology.

Opportunities include:

- Networking with other professionals and employers to forge lasting links
- Hearing inspiring stories and gaining practical information from panel experts and successful IEPs
- Attending a skills building session hosted by LinkedIn

Come join us for the 13th successful year of this unique event with over 1300 attendees. See event details below.
